

THE FIFTEENTH SESSION.

At 12 o'clock last night, the 15th session of the Nevada Legislature adjourned, sine die.

While some errors have been committed by that body, they have been of the head and not of the heart.

This Legislature has been characterized by a disposition on the part of the members to deal fairly and squarely by their constituents, in the enactment of laws most conducive to the general welfare of the population of the State in general, and there is no better example of their work in this direction than the passage of the Australian ballot law, the provisions of which are so well known as to require no notice here.

Though the action of this Legislature has not always been understood on some measures, it is a notable fact that bribery and corruption have not been charged by the newspapers of the State, and the "Rotten Burrough" stigma is rapidly being erased.

The yearly expenses of the State have been reduced many thousands of dollars, and the State has made for itself a record in the matter of economy and reform.

Laying all prejudice aside, and making the proper allowance for inexperience and the misconstruction of existing laws, with last night's adjournment there passed away one of the most honorable, conscientious and useful Legislative bodies that ever assembled in any State.

THE VETO.

No matter how the merits of the 12 o'clock law may be regarded, the veto of the Governor will be indorsed by the people when the grounds upon which the veto message was based, are understood.

The bill, as it passed, repealed the law in all but three counties, but the exception was made in such a manner that it could not be viewed as a general law. The Legislative trick by which the provision against special legislation is evaded, by making certain laws applicable to counties having a given population or casting a certain vote is open to objection in the eyes of many lawyers because its intent is so evident, but the generalization is usually such that at any time counties other than those included in the original intent may come under the provisions. In the case of the bill that was vetoed this generalization was attempted by excepting counties of a given population according to the census of 1890. This inflexible list left no possible excuse for regarding the bill as anything but one expressly applicable to the counties having that population and under no circumstances applicable to any other, and the Governor with a knowledge of the facts could not do otherwise than veto the bill.

Last Night's Work.

Senate Concurrent Resolution, amending the Constitution permitting the investment of State funds in bonds of irrigation Districts, passed.

The bill making a close season for trout was passed.

The bill making March 15th the close of the game season was passed.

A good many bills of minor interest were also passed.

Felton Elected.

In the California Senatorial contest Felton was elected unanimously yesterday at noon. It is now claimed that the charges of alleged bribery against Felton, were made to defeat him. It is to be hoped this is so.
